I. Introduction & Schedule

A. Neighborhood Courts

In early 2012, District Attorney George Gascón expanded the scope of San Francisco's Community Courts Program through the Neighborhood Courts Initiative. Neighborhood Courts have been established in all ten San Francisco police districts, case referral has been streamlined through five Neighborhood Prosecutors assigned to each district, and case eligibility has expanded to serve a wide range of misdemeanors and infractions.

Neighborhood Courts are a community-based approach to improving the quality, safety and cohesion of each district through restorative justice methods. Rather than pursuing traditional criminal case processing, the District Attorney's Office (SFDA) refers appropriate misdemeanor and infraction cases to one of ten Neighborhood Courts throughout San Francisco. Common case types include, but are not limited to, shoplifting, vandalism and disorderly conduct.

At Neighborhood Court, a panel of volunteer adjudicators, trained in restorative justice and problem-solving, hear the case. Neighborhood Court panels are composed of residents who live and work in the community where the incident occurred; there are no judges, defense attorneys or prosecutors. To resolve the case, adjudicators issue "directives," including community service, restitution, apology letters, training and treatment, to repair the harm caused by the incident. Participants who successfully complete Neighborhood Court directives have their criminal case dismissed. Neighborhood Court hearings are voluntary and confidential.

B. Neighborhood Justice Fund

All restitution funds collected from Neighborhood Court directives are held by SFDA solely for disbursement through the Neighborhood Justice Fund grant program. At least once per year, SFDA awards restitution funds as grants to community-based organizations for projects that will enhance the safety, livability and neighborhood cohesion of San Francisco's districts. Grants awarded during the 2012 disbursement are for projects to be completed between March 1, 2013 and December 31, 2013.

Neighborhood Justice Fund project options include, but are not limited to the following:

Neighborhood Safety & Livability
